NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Brooklyn has several subjects and lively fragments. Even if you manage to escape from Brooklyn here, and the Legislature has broken out to admit to statehood a few other entirely respectable territories, you will find Brooklyn matters have a tendency to harass. There is a law applying only to the City of Brooklyn under which certain privileges of importance to the community may be had by a general election. The object of the law is to prevent the corporations from buying up the privileges that be, instead of having the people vote on them. The operation of affairs only by open public action, a vote of men and women, is supposed to be secured through the publicity of the election. Now, these franchise matters could not have become a more perfect question, for the Rapid Transit Company proposes to build a tunnel under the East River, and to operate it by electricity. It is a scheme of the purchasers that the tunnel be a free one. The operations of officers

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 9, 188-.

The local money market was firm, with the bulk of commercial loans at 7 per cent. The securities were active. War bonds grew stronger a trifle under rushing sales. Sterling was steady.—The Chicago wheat market was unusually weak, with no interest acting to commercial lines, which went to lower figures. Other markets were dull, with weakness in provisions and a firmer tone to corn. Oats remained with fractional gain closed 1c under latest, April 2 cents lower, May more lower, wheat 1 cents lower, corn ½ over higher, cash ½ over lower, oats ½ over lower, barley easy, and flaxseed 1 over lower.

The stocks of grain in Chicago elevators last Saturday evening were: 2,211,700 bushels of wheat, 1,201,700 bushels of corn, 2,000,000 bushels of oats, 700,000 bushels of rye, and 10,000 bushels of barley. These figures are larger than the corresponding week a month ago by 700,000 in wheat and 500,000 in corn. The visible supply of grain for the corresponding week a year ago footed 6,207,000 bushels.

The Congressional Immigration Investigation Committee, in the course of a day's session at Augusta found that at least 50 glass and metal workers from abroad had obtained that part of the country since the new tariff went into effect. Representative Bingham of Philadelphia went into force. Men with the tyranny of foreign workingmen at home were found to have been shipped downward from New York. Kingsboro, Indiana, and Evansville have been imported for work on the coal roads and the pipe lines. Responsible men of Philadelphia who have been engaged in this country from abroad, on their own application and upon oath to the agents on the United States, were also notable in the numbers of the committee. It was stated by some of the witnesses that the effect of the importation of labor had been to lower wages, and that wages had been forced down, in 12 months, day by day competition with the dollar-a-day of Hungarians and other foreigners who never became citizens and took this step. It was stated that in some manufacturing towns over 50 per cent of the operatives were to be found in the spring to go back and return to the old.

The Des Moines Register says Senator Allison made a "non-debate" speech to offend his associates by his investigation of frauds in Montana elections last November. We cannot agree with him. We believe that he took during a two-hour talk but will not touch down a single pin. The trouble with the Senator was that he called in every fellow-player. If he had wanted to score he should have faced the batter only and not let his lightning screw a fourteen alley. Then he would have bowled down pins to correspond. On second, too, Senator Allison could have, with his own hands, wiped 7 runs (votes, you know, were higher, cash ½ over lower, oats ½ over lower, barley easy, and flaxseed 1 over lower).

It is by no means impossible that the movement which has begun this December in schedule will be followed by January and February conspicuously above the average. The merchants of the country seem to have their eyes open to the fact that there is no reason why heavy stocks should accumulate in the same degree. The winter of 1887-'88 was marked by high temperature and an open fall of only 72. In 1886-'87 blizzards, such as were never known to before, had been experienced as early as November 1. With the ground soaked with water, and with the temperature of the late fall above the freezing point, Chicago was certainly far more likely to come out unblown to any time than the carriers. They lose their hats and umbrellas when they meet one adverse atmosphere. As for "the great Christmas sale for the prepayment" no one knows half from one article being sold more often the third or fourth time. There can be no ground Christmas that that of January, which leaves not quite December, yet there are a hundred for them. And if the December market which we now have is unhealthy in character it ought to appear as in November.

Many of the readers of THE TRIBUNE must have been surprised to find that for more than two days, one of them with a hotly contested record and the other with a character not above suspicion, have been the ruling spirits of a betting association and a mutual insurance company. It must have amused those that have had occasion much to covenant with Superintendent Byrnes of the State Insurance Department and Inspector Bonfield of the Corporation of Chicago.

It is hardly necessary to say that the members, if not in language Mr. Dorsey, in his a worth and intention, as a company would Mr. Payne as Secretary of State has gone on the policy of this Government to its most holdover in its general commercial relations to foreign Powers, and to its special encouragements to those States. But this is not all. Both Houses of Congress have on motion to add representatives to a congress which is to meet in Washington next spring just to consider questions such. Two Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee have been forced, by the pressure of the times, to go to Chicago during the holidays to see what can be done to relieve the situation. Even Democratic Congressmen are not so much in favor of "Cleveland" as they were a year ago. Even Democratic Congressmen are not so much in favor of "Cleveland" as they were a year ago. Even Democratic Congressmen are not so much in favor of "Cleveland" as they were a year ago.

It is true that the falling observation which these men see may not continue to this State, but to Indiana. That is of little consequence, however, for but one organization has been undertaken by the combination, and one of the highest importance to the public as a matter of common decency, that we have both to let men apply to serve of on the same terms.

There is a point to all this. It will be an unwelcome task for Mr. Egbert's first acts as Secretary of State to the turbid intercourse into a congress of representatives from the States of the Mississippi Valley, and the Far West below. The Democratic party is to be the party of the South, and the Republican party is to be the party of the North. CARTER OF MR. BLAINE'S HOUSE.

It is rather refreshing to note that the Secret, with Senator Edmunds in the rear, is moving forward and occupying Mr. Blaine's old vacating ground, and that even the Democratic House has sufficiently recovered from the wave of "Cleveland" to pass its vote on the same question without a suspicion of partisanship or apprehension. The resolution was offered a few days ago by Senator Edmunds, and has gone to the Committee on Foreign Relations, provides as follows:

That the Commissioner of the United States with such other persons, and delegates and members of the Commission of any Republics of North and South America as may be appointed by the Secretary of State, or pursuant to the act of Congress approved April 18, 1888, and the President is hereby authorized to invite the Governments of Mexico, the Republic of Hayti, and the Republic of Santo Domingo to be represented at the Conference of the Republics of America.

ATLANTA CHARTER OF THE KNIGHTS.

The Atlanta Court of some scientific writers that great disasters, like earthquakes, never come singly, but happen in groups, both under conditions in the manner how which have occurred during the last few days. There have been the earthquakes in Charleston and Missouri, the Johnstown flood in Pennsylvania, the fire in Hoboken, and the burning of the steamer Pulaski at Savannah. In February only two such disasters occurred, the explosion at the boiler of the steamer Pulaski at Savannah, by the way, the steamer Pulaski burned at Erie, involving a loss of many lives. In October the steamer Pulaski was destroyed by a gunpowder explosion at Toledo, and nearly five lives were lost, and the steamer Chicago was sunk at Lake Michigan, and six persons were killed. A young lady teacher there was also overcome with fright, and in that case of the was completely saved. There have been many accidents, both steamers have burned, involving an aggregate loss of many thousand lives. The steamer Lake Shore, at Cleveland, a short distance below Memphis, two days ago, the Lee Shore, at Duluth, W. T., two weeks since, and the steamer Lake of Texas, at Galveston, Tex., two weeks ago. Shipwrecks, too, have recently been numerous.

The Lake Shore and John H. Dunham were the only ones of any importance that have occurred on the Mississippi River for many years, and they present many points of resemblance. Both were large, swift, and steamed over shoals, and both had cargoes of cotton and were heavily laden. In both cases the fire broke out spontaneously, and where discovered was under such headway that nothing could be done to stop it. In both cases, also, the fire-proof iron work seriously over the great bodies beforehand and through the holds below that scores of lives must have been lost before the boats could reach shore, short as the distances were. In the case of the Lake Shore she was in the middle of the river at night, but the loss of life was larger in the former case. In neither case was any of the fire saved by personal exertions, but there is no reason to doubt that it was occasioned in each by the fire communicating to some inflammable cargo. There was nearly a month's difference between the seasons in the different cases. There was nearly a month's difference between the seasons in the different cases. There was nearly a month's difference between the seasons in the different cases.

In the midst of these dreadful disasters, the small affair of carrying engines or of great, the contract of the officers of the two steamers stands out conspicuous for coolness and courage. Mate E. Cheek, the Captain of the Adams, at the risk of his life stuck to his ship and sacrificed his possessions on its passengers. On the last boat to leave the burning steamer, Two of the clerks, Scott and Hunter, worked to the last, and were saved only by the skin of their teeth. The third clerk, Cornell, lost his life trying to save some negro women and children. The steward also the officers were, J. H. Adams, the Captain of the Adams, was every inch a hero. He remained at his post to the last, and was, unfortunately and severely badly burned, plunged into the river only to lose his life in the sight of those on shore, who were unable to rescue him. No fault can be attached to the officers of these steamers or to their crews. They did their duty like brave men, and but for their efforts many more would undoubtedly have perished. None can be to blame in such cases, however, for carelessness. If the fire on the Adams Cash, Chief, says: "The fire was hardly of the fire and began to rise
